Innovative Concepts has truly proven to be very innovative. Wireless Mountain Laboratories originally contacted In-Con to help with some simple MIS issues. What we ended up with is not only our questions answered, but an excellent outsource company that has helped our company grow very quickly without incurring the overhead of full-time employees. In-Con has successfully maintained our network, provided computer hardware at competitive pricing, installed and maintained our voice and data communications network, and training for our employees on the use of the computers and network.

Amazingly it does not end with MIS and computer related work. In-Con has proven to be instrumental in providing outsourced technical support for our cutting edge wireless technologies as well as engineering design consultation on our products in development. They have been pivotal in creating the software that works with our hardware as well.

I find all members of the In-Con team to be honest and hardworking individuals. Dealing with Innovative Concepts, even under trying circumstances, is always a pleasure.
